

Otters are Back in the Thames

Tuesday, 23rd November 2021 at 10.30 on Zoom

The otter is an iconic species of our River Thames, but until recently its numbers have been in sad decline. In today's talk, Graham Scholey, who works for the Environment Agency, and is Chair of the UK Otter Biodiversity Action Plan Steering Group, will be telling us of the work undertaken by his Agency to encourage the return of these fascinating creatures. He will also speak more widely of the ecology of the Thames, and the wide variety of wildlife it supports. His talk is fully illustrated, and there will be plenty of time for questions at the end.
